In memory of my beloved wife to whose inspiration and help the value of this Directory is mainly due.

PREFACE

The sixth issue of LLOYD'S CLERICAL DIRECTORY goes out in the hope that it will prove acceptable and useful to those who have already subscribed or shall subscribe for it. The task of preparing and issuing a work that had to fight for some years for its very existence now grows lighter every year. It is a sincere pleasure and a source of real gratification that opposition has practically ceased. But for one letter (which follows) received since the last issue it would have been possible to say that this opposition had absolutely come to an end. A clergyman writes:

> "Not wishing to be or appear discourteous I answer your letter in this way: of course it is but the thought of one in 5,000. I wish it were the thought of all. I do not care for the enclosed [circular]; it seems to me to be like the horse show and prize dog methods and pedigrees. If any persons are interested in me sufficiently to desire information they can get it from the proper persons.
> Respectfully,
>
> ....
> P. S.—The Holy Scriptures, illustrated by Alexander Pope and Robert Baines, are more to the point today."

It is hard, indeed, to reply to this good man. Efforts have been made from time to time to make reply to objectors and critics in the introduction to the various issues of this directory, and with such a measure of success that I feel it unnecessary now to attempt any more. It is possible to say that the present issue contains the record, in full, of one of the most estimable of the clergy of the Church who has consistently refused to give it from the first. He confesses to have entirely misapprehended the purpose of the directory. I trust that this may be sufficient reply to the reverend critic quoted above.

In correcting the entries of the clergy from year to year we are greatly impressed by the frequent changes occurring among them. It is simply deplorable. The causes are not easy to determine, still less to correct. But the fact remains. What may the causes, or some of them, be? After allowing for the general restlessness that characterizes the age in which we live and small clerical salaries, there still remain some reasons additional for the nomadic habits of such a considerable proportion of the clergy of the Church. One of them, we believe to be the real decadence in preaching which, perhaps, will be allowed by many besides the writer. I do not now take account of mere fluency of speech (a by no means rare gift), which, for a time, carries many a man a long way. There is enough and to spare of that. But, since no man can preach well who does not pray well, read well, think well, suffer well, and know well the real (not apparent) trials of the laity (of every class and condition) whose leader he may be, and so long as such experiences are strange to the clergy so long will their sermons lack the grip that holds. Offense may be taken at the position here assumed; but if it be possible to help by fair and honest criticism then the help ought not to be withheld.

Many of the clergy affect to despise the sermon and relegate it to an inconspicuous place among their duties. Little care, therefore, is bestowed on the preparation of sermons, little thought expressed in them, and, of course, little results flow from them. When will the clergy realize that preaching is the royal road to the sacraments and to God? I hold (have ever held) that the first call of the clergy is to preach the Gospel, the celebration of the sacraments following thereafter and thereupon. This point, I think, is not debatable. So much of modern preaching lacks the freshness and the vitality that holds the attention of the hearer and moves him to think and to do. Perfunctory, monotonous, humdrum, soulless it is, its only virtue its brevity. In days when speaking (and good speaking) is done by many other than clergy, and when from hundreds of platforms there may be heard and enjoyed addresses, appeals, I had always written, sermons, with point and character, it is expected that the clergy should not merely keep abreast herewith but, of course, lead. But it is plain they do not. Hence, congregations quickly weary of their weekly pulpit food, and lose interest in everything pertaining to the Church herself. A good preacher will hold a congregation as long as he continues to be a good preacher and no longer. To become and to continue such he must be a man of regular reading and meditation. The Bible first, afterwards a choice of the excellent books published today, should be his daily food. If we look back, any of us, to those preachers who have most helped and impressed us we shall find that he or they who have been most familiar with the treasures of the Bible immediately come to mind. But too many of the clergy of today use the Bible more as an exhibit than as the living Word of God. They spend too much time in criticising and too little in reverently reading its profound message to the world.

Of course, it will be urged, that there is no time, in these busy days, for the reading, praying and meditation necessary to good preaching. But, if it be true that nothing can take the place of good preaching in a parish, that the people must be kept forever earnestly interested in the things of the Spirit, then time should be taken from other things, of far less importance, and given to the sermon. But it is not alone for the sake of the congregation that sermons should be good—what about the preacher himself? If he goes week by week into the pulpit with the knowledge that he has made diligent preparation of the message and its form, he will be stimulated and inspired when there, and the shafts he shoots will go home. Thus is he, himself, helped and strengthened as much as his people. His responsibilities will be viewed differently and by and by he will get a true focus and will see clearly. One of the first things he will then recognize will be the unworthiness of the reasons before given for either seeking or accepting a new call. The strong, efficient men in the sacred ministry have been men, in general, who have stuck to their work through thick and thin, and who have been, in the best sense, good preachers. One of the agreeable things in the preparation of this directory has been the review, from year to year, of the men who abide in their parishes or missions.*

I have given, in this issue of LLOYD'S CLERICAL DIRECTORY a list (by no means complete) of those clergy who desire a change in the title of the Church in America. The small asterisk placed opposite the names of those who do so tells the tale. The number will be found to be quite large, as will, also, the quality of the men who desire a substitute for the makeshift which now does duty in a most important connection.

*"One of the most positive hindrances to the systematic, effectual accomplishment of the mission of the Church has been, and now is, the habit of perambulation possessing an appreciable number of clergymen who are continually mistaking the impulsive prompting of the spirit of 'wanderlust' for the wisdom-matured conviction of the call of God. Even in itinerant bodies with due provision for such regular reciprocal rotation vacancies obtaining, it has been found wise and expedient to make the system voluntary and remove all time limit. With us, where no provision exists for filling vacancies except the exercise and extension of the very practice responsible for these vacancies, the habit designated is pernicious and destructive in its demoralizing effect upon clergy and congregations and in the barren labor and waste of time and energy it imposes upon the chief pastors, whose supreme duty and desire it is to keep every flock well shepherded and fed. I have no condemnation for change made in obedience to missionary Macedonian evangelization call, or where present unprovoked or obstructed ability is challenged to such full and active exercise as shall afford it free course to run and be glorified (let such things continue and increase), but the motiveless peregrination from place to place of many of our clergymen—especially those in swaddling clothes of Orders—for no other manifest reason than a sleepless lack of conviction and determination, is something to be discouraged and discontinued. View it as we may, it is positively harmful, and I repeat that a most significant blessing wherewith any clergyman can bless his brethren of the ministry is in setting a constant, consistent example contrary to this practice and principle."—Bishop Murray.

Many clergymen have gone further than the mere "yes" or "no" expected, and have supplied the title deemed best by them. Ninety-five per centum of them give "American Catholic" as the most suitable, a goodly proportion being content to ask that the word "Protestant" be dropped out of sight and hearing. A few would have "American Church," while other few would like "The Church in America." One well-known and influential delegate to the General Convention writes: "I do desire a change in the title of the Church, provided the change is not a party measure, and is made on the basis on which I voted for it in the General Convention of 1910." It is well worth noting that among those who have given attention to the change-of-name question on the directory circular are many of the very oldest of the clergy. It is also worth remarking the number of these in the South who favor a change, and that to "American Catholic." "Cui bono," "Indifferent," "Not worth while," "Decidedly not," "The question asked is a blot on your work" (from one), are a few of the replies made from those who are opposed to the change of name, and one reverend writer somewhat sententiously says: "If some clergy would perform the work of the ministry, and forget about the name of the Church, or change of name, they would present, not a spectacle, but a wholesome example to the man in the street." A priest of standing and influence writes to the editor: "The question of the name of the Church is too complicated to be answered by 'yes' or 'no.' I am not enamored of the present name. Whether I desire a change depends upon whether or not the new name would be preferable to the old. What I do desire is the omission from the Prayer Book all after the word 'Church' where first used or, perhaps better, all after 'Prayer,' leaving it just 'The Book of Common Prayer.'"

It is evident that in the Church's Foreign Mission Field there is a decided and growing sentiment in favor of a substitute for the present title of the Church. At least the permissive use of such a substitute. One of the best known of our missionaries voices this sentiment and asks for "a permissive change in the title-page of the Prayer Book in certain Missionary Districts." This would be to satisfy a real need, not alone in the interest of the Church herself but in deference to common sense. It is not always pleasant to contemplate the style and title of the Ark of Salvation in which one expects eternal sanctuary when rendered in some foreign tongues. It is to be hoped that the next General Convention will, at least, afford the relief so much sought by so many among the most loyal and devoted of her clergy. Such relief, if granted, will mean very much to those who are seeking to advance the highest welfare of the Church in places as well where she has been long established as in those where she is not known. A change of name cannot avail in a direction detrimental to her welfare or inimical to her interests. The supreme purpose sought to be served is the vindication of the history, the constitution, the witness, and the meaning of the Church Catholic. The gist of the matter is enshrined, I believe, in the following brief note received, quite recently, from one of the most venerated of the clergy in the Church: "I believe in the 'Holy Catholic Church,' and I pray that 'having the testimony of a good conscience' I may die 'in the communion of the Catholic Church.' I am perfectly satisfied with the name 'Catholic,' and wish no other name, unless it be 'The Holy Catholic Church,' or 'One Catholic and Apostolic Church.' Somewhat behind the times, perhaps, but in good company, I believe."

I hope that the records of those among the clergy who have come to the Church from the Denominational religious bodies will be noted. They will repay the time given thereto. The proportion is considerable, though not as large as I believed. Of course this information has been held back in some cases, but not in sufficiently large numbers as to make a great difference. It, however, remains true that the Church has attracted and does attract many of the best men from our brethren not of the Protestant Episcopal Church. I have been impressed by the careful manner of the converts in the making of their returns and the conscientious way in which they have sent them in. A large number of the reverend clergy, in spite of the fact that a stamped envelope, fully addressed, was enclosed for the return of the information asked for, failed to respond at all.

A few words as to the circular. It is sent to every clergyman in the Church wherever he may be, or, at least, an honest effort is made to do so. If, therefore, by reason of his failure to send in the information asked for, the entry under his name be incorrect, to him alone belongs the blame. It is to be feared that there are among the reverend clergy some who may not understand that the directory is the one place where their records are looked up. That they are looked up is certain. The senior warden of one of the largest parishes in the Church told the editor that during an interregnum in the rectorship of the parish, LLOYD'S CLERICAL DIRECTORY was a real comfort to them. I trust that the almost complete character of this issue of the directory in the matter of the records of the clergy will not be overlooked. It means much, especially it bears witness to the almost uniformly honest living of the clergy of the Church. The editor has, at times, incurred the displeasure and, indeed, the heated indignation of some of the clergy for having too carefully followed "copy" in so far as their record was concerned when this record has been made and sent in by themselves. Some have reproached me with being the cause of their losing calls to leading parishes. But, I am proud to say, none has accused me of doing him a studied injury.*

Many of the clergy have urged me to give the same detailed record of the parishes and missions of the Church as I have given of the clergy. In reply let me say that this has, of a long time, been my desire. Perhaps it will be given by and by. It would be a large undertaking, involving a task almost herculean. It would be an excellent thing, I believe, to send out one issue of the directory with such a parochial record, in the interests of the history of the Church alone. This, however, is not what is particularly wished by the clergy. They are intent on finding out the financial ability and bona fides of the parishes, thus establishing a sort of parochial Bradstreet. It might be productive of much good to do this or it might not. It remains to be seen.

I fear that some diocesan returns will be found incomplete or not up to date. This is due to the neglect or the unwillingness of diocesan secretaries to send in their journals. This is to be regretted; but the editor is entirely blameless. He has done his best to meet every requirement by unremitting care and courtesy. He owes deep gratitude to that large number of secretaries who have unfailingly sent in journals and with them the offer to supply any information not given in them. But those who have overlooked this directory and have not sent in journals, I desire to urge to remember another year the importance that has now come to belong to this annual of the Church.

It only remains for me to thank the Bishops and Clergy and many of the laity of the Church for their cordial and unflagging interest in LLOYD'S CLERICAL DIRECTORY and to ask for a continuance thereof. In future issues every care will be taken to ensure accuracy and completeness so that, in this way, the best and most permanent interests of the Catholic Church in this country may be served.

THE EDITOR.

As showing how difficult it is, at times, to secure information for the directory one clergyman wrote as follows: "Given A. M. degree by .... College, but declined, because Christ said 'Be not called Master.'"

LIQUOR AND DRUG HABITS QUICKLY CURED

Lectures, condemnation or imprisonment cannot convert and cure the alcoholic or drug addict. When you realize that their unfortunate condition is not due to deliberate vice, but is the result of a poisoned system, superinduced by the cumulative effects of alcohol or narcotic drugs, you will understand that the only REAL service you can possibly render such victims and their stricken families is to assist them in procuring proper medical attention.

A cure can be effected only by removing the CAUSE. This is accomplished by our method of treatment through the process of elimination, which destroys the craving, and restores the patient to a normal condition. Treatment is harmless. There are positively no bad after effects.

THE SOUTHERN CHURCHMAN

A FAMILY CHURCH PAPER

Published by The Southern Churchman Co., Richmond, Va.

Two Dollars a Year.
To Clergymen, One Dollar a Year.

THE SOUTHERN CHURCHMAN is the oldest Church paper in the United States, having been published continuously for seventy-four years under the name it now bears.

It gives all the important news of the Church, at large and of the various Dioceses.

Its Family and Children's Departments are filled with bright, entertaining, and instructive reading matter, making it a welcome visitor to old and young in the household.

ITS MOTTO:

"Catholic for Every Truth of God; Protestant Against Every Error of Man."

It is courteous and fair in its statements and criticisms; conservative in its principles, not recognizing any faction in the Church, but gladly conceding the sincerity of those whose views of Church administration differ from its own, holding them as brethren in the Lord and of the same Household of Faith.

Its Churchmanship is that of the Prayer Book, as interpreted by the use of the American Church.

THE SOUTHERN CHURCHMAN will be glad to receive and publish news of Church work from any part of the country.
